INGREDIENTS:

Aqua, PEG-4 olivate, Glycerin, Paraffinum liquidum, Propylene glycol, Prunus amygdalus dulcis oil, Cetearyl alcohol, Cetyl alcohol, Oryza sativa starch, Centella asiatica extract, Ruscus aculeatus root extract, Allantoin, Aloe barbadensis leaf juice powder, Escin, Pentylene glycol, Phenoxyethanol, BHT, Imidazolidinyl urea, Sodium dehydroacetate, Triethanolamine.

PROPERTIES:

Ruscus aculeatus: the roots contain steroid saponins and resins, which have demonstrated effective vasoprotection and anti-inflammatory properties on peripheral venous circulation, together with excellent tolerability. The plant is used in the treatment of disorders associated with chronic venous insufficiency such as hemorrhoids, pains and edema.

Centella asiatica: thanks to its active ingredients, it allows to preserve the structure and tone of the vessel walls due to its phlebotonic activity. In fact, the Centella asiatica, reinforcing and elasticizing the walls of the blood vessels, promotes proper peripheral circulation and is therefore indicated to prevent and treat varicose veins, reducing vein dilation and capillary permeability, and counteracting hemorrhoids.

Escin: it's a mixture of triterpenic saponins extracted from the Aesculus hippocastanum. The Escin is considered to be the molecule responsible for the vasoprotective effects: it promotes cellular microcirculation and turn-over and it has a vasoprotective and reinforcing action of the vascular connective tissue.

Aloe: Aloe Gel is known for its anti-inflammatory action and its cicatrizing properties, so it can therefore be used to treat hemorrhoids at the initial stage due to its healing ability against damaged skin. In addition, aloe gel has a palliative action, calms inflammation, gives relief in case of pain and relieves itching. The aloe vera gel also acts on the circulation.
